STATEMENT OF CAPACITY

Marine Services Industry in the Northern Territory

The Northern Territory Government commissioned the Industry Capability Network of the Northern Territory (ICN NT) to undertake an industry capability mapping and gap analysis study of businesses in the greater Darwin region associated with servicing the marine industry.

Industry in the Northern Territory has strong capabilities to service the maintenance and supply requirements of defence and offshore oil and gas platform support vessels. The study analysed local capabilities across 81 discrete scopes and found 134 businesses with proven experience and relevant accreditations.

Industry in the greater Darwin region is currently meeting the service and supply requirements of a variety of vessels, including the Armidale Class Patrol Boats, Australian Border Force's Cape Class Vessel, Platform Supply Vessels servicing the offshore oil and gas industry, fishing, cargo ships, and visiting international naval vessels.

In 2020 Defence announced Plan Galileo which sets out an ambitious transformation path for the sustainment of the Royal Australian Navy's surface fleet. A key component of Plan Galileo is the development of four Regional Maintenance Centres in strategic locations around Australia, including Darwin. These will operate in a nationally integrated sustainment environment that consistently provides affordable, reliable and fit-for-purpose systems and ships for the Royal Australian Navy to fight and win at sea.

The Royal Australian Navy currently operates twelve Armidale Class Patrol Boats and two Cape Class Patrol Boats across Northern Australia. The Armidale Class are nearing the end of their 15-year service life and will be replaced by twelve much larger Arafura Class Offshore Patrol Vessels, the first of which is due to arrive in 2022. This presents new opportunities for local Industry to support these more complex capabilities.

In recognition of the growing demand, the NT Government is progressing with the Darwin Ship Lift Facility. In addition, the Land Development Corporation is developing the 150 hectare Marine Industry Park to support the defence, oil and gas, coastal barging and logistics sectors.

“ Plan Galileo directs the development of an integrated continuous sustainment model that is underpinned by an enterprise that is adaptive and quick to respond to Navy's maintenance and modernisation requirements. We are building a world class continuous sustainment environment for the 21st century and beyond. In the near future Regional Maintenance Centre - North will deliver that sustainment activity. A strong, capable, responsive and flexible local industry is essential in realising the benefits of Plan Galileo for Navy's Darwin-based home ported vessels, as well as those that visit throughout the year. ”

ABOUT THE STUDY

The information compiled in the industry capability mapping and gap analysis study evaluated the resources and skills necessary to compete, obtain and carry out work in the marine service and supply sector in the Northern Territory.

The Industry Capability Network of the Northern Territory (ICN NT) reviewed businesses located within the greater Darwin region and active in the sector, with proven experience working within the Defence, offshore oil and gas, or broader maritime industries. These businesses carry a low risk profile for marine industry work and hold industry recognised accreditations. The information captured was specific to the supply and service of Offshore Patrol Vessels, Armidale Class Patrol Boats and the offshore oil and gas Platform Supply Vessels.

ICN NT engaged with industry experts to ascertain requirements industry must meet to be involved in the sector and any barriers to entry. The industry experts included retired Defence personnel, tier one and two businesses already engaged in the marine service and supply sector, and relevant industry bodies.

The study identified 522 businesses with capacity to service the 81 scopes of work analysed. Of these, 134 had full capability with relevant accreditation and proven experience, while 166 were capable but lacked experience or relevant accreditation. A further 222 were identified as having the capability to provide supplies directly to the marine industry or the businesses serving it. This report summarises the size, scale and experience of the businesses with full capability.

KEY REQUIREMENTS FOR INDUSTRY

The Australian Maritime Safety Authority oversees the National Standard for Commercial Vessels (NSCV). The NSCV details stringent requirements regarding the construction of vessels that industry operators are required to abide by. These include requirements such as watertight and weather tight integrity, construction, fire safety, electrical, stability and navigation equipment. These requirements mention that operators are to be suitably qualified, with relevant standards referenced.

Shipowners and operators use certification bodies such as Det Norske Veritas and Germanischer Lloyd (DNV GL), American Bureau of Shipping (ABS), Bureau Veritas (BV), and others as a way of ensuring an international standard to which their assets must be maintained, thus maximising their efficiency and value.

Holding compliance from these bodies requires ongoing auditing of third party standards and the systems from which they are achieved. These include, but are not limited to, standards such as ISO 9001 (quality management system) and ISO 14001 (environmental management systems). These accreditations ensure the business follows regulatory guidance and undergoes third-party inspections of their performance, business, systems, people, and supply chains through management system certification, verification, assessment, and training.

Working on vessels in the marine industry requires marine occupational health and safety training, ticketing and related insurances. Recognition as an Original Equipment Manufacturers (OEM) certified agent can play a key part in a company's ability to service specific components onboard a vessel.
